MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1795.

VIENNA, December 5.

THE public here, notwithstanding the more pressing consideration of the war with France, is a good deal occupied with the new order of affairs likely to take place in Poland. The empress with all the ambition that characterises her, does not seem disposed to let the king of Prussia profit much by the success which has distinguished the brilliant career of Russians. Her general Suwarrow, has not received instructions from his court; but it is generally understood, that the empress means to erect Poland into an independent and hereditary kingdom, the throne of which is first to be ascended by the archduke Constantine. To give greater splendour to the monarchy, she means to restore all the provinces taken from Poland, except such as border on her grand adversary, the empire of the Ottomans. The king of Prussia with all his influence, opposes this arrangement, lest he should be obliged to similar restitution; but in his situation, where resistance would be ineffectual, submission must be the alternative.

The politics of the house of Austria seemingly induce to acquiesce in the designs of Russia. Marshal Harrocurt, who commands the Imperial army, is every day receiving reinforcements from the garrisons of the places taken by the French. He has withdrawn entirely from the province of Cracow, and has established himself in the palatinate of Sendomir. He has also been joined by 13 battalions of infantry, and a large body of cavalry, which was stationed for some time in Bohemia.

The last dispatches brought by couriers from Italy and the Rhine, are deemed so inauspicious as to put the court in very bad humour; the consequence of which has been, that all the preparations making for celebrating the festival of St. Andrew, have been suspended, as also the intended promotions in the military orders. The French having greatly augmented the force which they had in Nice, and their generals speak of establishing their winter quarters in Lombardy. The archduke Ferdinand is making preparations to oppose them; but he has not any force which could be thought adequate to the object. Our troops have already lost the important posts of Pomparatu and Rabulenta. A great alarm is likewise spread by the French navy, as the squadron which was blocked in the gulph of Jean has joined that from Toulon, the English fleet continues in the ports of Corsica.

LONDON, January 1.

Extract of a letter, dated Holland, December 25, brought over by the mail, yesterday.

"The Dutch have certainly been endeavouring to negotiate a separate peace with the French, for which purpose they sent a person to Paris, who, however, was not successful till very lately. On the morning of the 17th, the prince stadtholder received a courier, informing that the convention were disposed to enter into a negotiation of peace with this country, and that two deputies should be immediately sent to Paris for that purpose. The stadtholder directly laid the business before the States General, who appointed M. Brantzen, formerly ambassador at Paris, and M. Repelaar, burgomaster of Dordt, who were to set off for Bois-le-Duc, where two French commissioners are arrived, with whom, no doubt, the business will be partly entered into."

The French have signified to the Dutch, that they are willing to treat for peace with all the powers at war, on the basis of the statu quo previous to the war. Our court has consented to the Dutch making a separate treaty.

BOSTON, February 11.

A gentleman from Martinico, which place he left about the 12th of January, informs, that 1800 British troops had arrived there from Gibraltar, and that he saw them landed.

From Lisbon, January 3.

To any port in the Mediterranean, there is not the smallest danger of our meeting Algerines or Moors."

From Aux-Cayes, January 6.

General Rigaud has returned from Cape Tiberon, which place he has lately taken from the English, and put the garrison to the sword.

Feb. 14. Another telegraphe has been made in Manchester, in England. It is the united efforts of two gentlemen, who have constructed it upon so simple a plan, that by a few lessons a child of seven years of age can read by it. As it is composed of three characters, you there are to suppose that they form eight, and with addition of two more for figures, and one for a blank and some other purposes, the machine may be said to consist of eleven characters. The first eight are arranged in a single piece of machinery, into upwards of [illegible] directions, so quick as is possible to be conceived, and express letters, words, and even fixed sentences, much faster than any person can write them.

Opposition in the British parliament, which, a year ago, dwindled down to between 40 and 50, has now risen to between 70 and 80. Until they ride paramount, no peace can be made.

The Portuguese admiral stationed at Gibraltar, lately sent a convoy to protect the American vessels at Malaga, which measure was highly approved of by his court.

Feb. 16. By the last intelligence from Holland, it appears, that the Dutch find but slender attention paid to their pacific advances; for, although the commandants at Breda and Bergen-op-Zoom, by orders from their high mightinesses, have directed the regiments there to act only on the defensive, on the part of the French, no such orders are known to have been given.

We are happy to find many religious societies are determined to appropriate the collections on the federal thanksgiving to the ransom or relief of the unhappy American sufferers in Algiers. Among those are the societies of Salem, Marblehead and Concord.

It is supposed on a moderate calculation, that the appropriation of all the contributions at the several churches throughout the United States, to the ransom of the prisoners in Algiers, it would be found fully equivalent to the purpose.

It seems certain that the French have withdrawn a great part of their northern army from the frontiers of Holland towards Antwerp, which place is the head quarters of general Pichegru. Latterly it has been found very difficult to forward provisions to the French army in Holland.

Extract of a letter from Constantinople, November 12.

"The late dismemberment of Poland is much urged here, by the French party, as an argument for a war with Russia; and they insist upon it, that the present is the most fit time for the Porte to repair the losses it sustained in the late war with that power.

"The inhabitants of Montemne, a warlike people, near the Venetian territory, having long borne the Ottoman yoke with great reluctance, having lately revolted, refusing to pay the ordinary tribute; but being reduced by the governor of Silistria, they have implored the mercy of the grand Signior, and partly obtained it, notwithstanding their submission was discretional."

A HORRID MURDER!

On Wednesday last, between the hours of twelve and one in the morning, a most horrid murder was committed on the body of captain Charles Furbush, of Andover, by a negro man of his own family, named Pomp. The family of the deceased, consisted of his wife, a son, three daughters and the negro before mentioned.

The son, and two of the daughters were from home. The deceased and his wife, slept as usual, in the room of the lower floor, and the daughter in a bed room adjacent. The negro had retired to his chamber without any signs of uneasiness known to the family.—But between twelve and one he got up, dressed himself, and first alarmed the daughter, by an attempt to get into her room; but finding the door fastened, desisted from the attempt.—He immediately entered the room of the deceased, while both he and his wife were in a sound sleep, and struck him with the head of an axe upon his left temple with such force, as to dash in the scull, and with a second blow, partly upon the left eye and partly upon the cheek, drove in the bones, he expired immediately without a groan. The blows awoke Mrs. Furbush, who instantly springing up, the negro left the room. The daughter also hearing the blows and the screech of her mother, instantly ran in, and with her mother attempted to raise up the body of the deceased, but finding no appearance of life, made their escape by a back way, to the nearest neighbour, to call assistance. In the mean time, this most wicked negro to complete the horrid scene, returned, took of his coat, turned up his shirt sleeves, and with a knife inhumanly cut his master's throat. He then dragged the body from the bed, and left it naked on the floor.—By this time, assistance came, and found the negro standing by the kitchen fire.—Being asked what he had been doing, he readily confessed the fact, and delivered himself up.—

Thus died captain Charles Furbush, in the 59th year of his age; who has left an afflicted family and friends to lament his untimely fate.

From a London paper, of December 1.

It was yesterday for certain ends asserted, "that Mr. Jay was going to Paris upon business of very great importance to this kingdom, and to all Europe." We can pretty confidently assert, that Mr. Jay will not leave this kingdom till the ratification of the treaty which has been lately signed, shall be returned to this country from America, and which cannot be expected before the month of March next. Mr. Jay, we have reason to believe will, in the mean time, visit Bath.

FRENCH CONSTITUTION of 1791.

Private letters from Paris of the 9th inst. state, "That the French constitution of 1791, has been lately re-printed in that metropolis, and has met with a very extensive sale; that the dutchess of Orleans has been set at liberty, and occupies the hotel de Toulouse (a palace which she inherited from her father, the late duke de Penthievre, son of the count de Toulouse) and that the chief motive which actuated the convention to grant a general amnesty to the insurgents of La Vendee, was, that they had lately received intelligence, that negotiations were carrying on between the British government and those insurgents, having for their object a descent to be made by the English, for the support of the French royalists."

NEW-YORK, February 21.

The report from Lisbon respecting the capture of Barcelona, may be true, though it is more probable premature. Figuera was taken about November 20. Koses, a fortified town, 16 miles from Figuera, was next to be attacked. The French army had then to march 64 miles to Barcelona, which must require some time to be reduced. It is possible, however, that the loss of the Spaniards at Figuera might have occasioned a precipitate retreat and evacuation of the fortified places.

Barcelona is the capital of Catalonia, one of the finest provinces of Spain. The city contains about 90,000 inhabitants, and for its manufactures and commerce, is one of the principal cities of Spain.

Feb. 23. On Saturday the 10th ultimo, the following melancholy and surprising accident took place: The house of Mr. Roger Smith, of Grafton, in the lower part of Vermont, was unfortunately set on fire by three small children, the oldest being only nine years of age, while the parents were both from home, by means of carrying a candle into the chamber, where there was a large quantity of undressed flax, laid up for drying, which was instantly absorbed with flames, and consumed with all its contents, together with the three children, who were found clasped together in one corner of the chamber; and after assistance was obtained, by means of throwing on snow, their bodies were considerably preserved from the fire, and on Tuesday following were decently interred.

PHILADELPHIA, February 20.

Extract of a letter from Pittsburgh, dated January 18.

"Our country is very quiet—the people seem perfectly convinced of their past folly, and on Thursday last a meeting of some of the principal insurgents took place at Parkinson's ferry, in order to raise, by subscription, a sum of money to indemnify the sufferers by the late insurrection.—A committee of five persons was appointed to repair to this place to wait on general Neville, and the other sufferers, to ascertain the amount of their losses—they are expected this day. Marshal has subscribed 100 pounds, John Cannon the same sum, and Parkinson (who has returned) has also subscribed very largely."

February 25.

Extract of a letter from German Creek, January 29.

"We had a treaty with the Cherokees the 18th of December, and the 8th instant they fell upon a party of men from our settlement, and killed one, and wounded two, without any loss on their side, this is the way that faithless and bloody tribe keep their treaties with us, we have some expectation that the Choctaws, Chickasaws and Upper Cherokees, will go to war against the Creeks, as a party of the Chickasaws has already been out to war against them and has brought in five Creek scalps which I am in hopes will be some ease to our frontiers, if congress will only give us the liberty of raising one hundred men for six months, to join the tribes that intend going to war against the Creeks, I make not the least doubt but we can oblige them to make a permanent treaty with the United States, for one half the expence that the treaty of New-York cost. If congress should not think it worth while to fall upon some other method for the protection of our frontiers than has been heretofore, I think that the inhabitants of this country will fall upon some plan for their own safety.

"The party of men above mentioned, that the savages fell upon, were out a hunting meat for the support of their families."

WINCHESTER, February 9.

A gentleman from Knoxville, on his way to Philadelphia, arrived here on Saturday last, and obligingly furnished us with the Knoxville Gazette of the 23d ult. from which the following articles are extracted.

KNOXVILLE, Jan. 23.

An express arrived here on Monday night last from Nashville, with dispatches from general Robertson to governor Blount, by whom we are informed, that William Colbert, a distinguished chief of the Chickasaws, who has a commission from the president of the United States, giving him the rank of major, with upwards of twenty warriors, arrived at Nashville with five Creek scalps, on the 4th inst. taken on Duck river on the morning of the 2d. The party of Creeks confisted of only the five who were killed. They had with them a war club, halters, bridles, and spurs, evidences of a determination for war and horse stealing. The leader of this party of Creeks and his brothers, were known to major Colbert and others of his party, to have been for years engaged in murdering and stealing upon the Mero district. Colbert bears the rank of general in his own nation, and is as bold and impetuous a Sans Culotte, as even France can produce.

The express also informs, that on the 5th instant, Elijah Walker, one of the mounted infantry on duty for the defence of Mero district, acting as a spy on the frontiers, was killed by the Indians, twelve miles to the southward of Nashville.

On the 5th inst. John Tye, jun. was killed, and John Tye, sen. John Burlingson, Sherard Mays, and Thomas Mays, wounded by the Indians, on the frontiers of Hawkins county.

It was omitted in our last to report the killing of a Creek Indian, by a party of Cherokees—the particulars respecting which are, that one of the warriors who accompanied Doublehead last summer to Philadelphia, to visit the president, called Chuccunnuttatia, or the Stallion, with nine others, about the 20th ult. fell in with a party of Creeks, approaching the frontiers of Georgia, with hostile intentions (as Chuccunnuttatia and his party supposed,) and killed one of them; and on the first inst. appeared with his scalp at Tellico-block house, where the scalp dance was that night held, by several principal chiefs and warriors of the Cherokees, in presence of many of the frontier and other citizens of the United States.

Messieurs PRINTERS,

By publishing the underwritten in your next paper, you will confer an obligation on your obedient servant,

A BARRISTER.

THERE is no character in public life so truly venerable and god-like, as that of a patriot, the accumulated praises due to the able and disinterested statesman, the honest reformer, the generous friend, the discreet guide and paternal guardian, are all in the most eminent degrees, with this peculiar addition that the guide and the guardian, are happily concentered in an upright individual, blessed with the inclination, means, and opportunity of serving the unfortunate of mankind. But a patriotic lawyer is even still more worthy our attention; his noble zeal in asserting, his confident courage and firm resolution in vindicating, his glorious intrepidity in preserving the rights and liberties of the people, the laws and constitution of his country, deservedly claim our warmest and most sincere acknowledgements.

The MEDDLER, No. III.

Fate never wounds more deep the gen'rous heart,
Than when a blockhead's insult points the dart.
DR. JOHNSON.

RETURNING home a few nights ago, I observed a company of young men sticking up a paper. Not being able to resist my inquisitive disposition, and suspecting that it was done with no good intent, I tore it down, and having afterwards examined its contents, I found it to be a lampoon on an innocent young lady, who, for no reason except the want of beauty, had been thus wantonly attacked. The performance itself was such a complication of scurrility and nonsense, as proved that the author possessed neither sensibility nor genius.

This execrable manner of exposing private characters has sprung up in Annapolis, to such a degree, that I have observed no less than five of these detestable performances within the period of three weeks. Most of these bear about them indisputable marks of their being the offspring of malice and stupidity, written merely to wound the feelings of those whom they attack. Than this manner of proceeding, nothing can be more ungenerous; to take a delight in exposing the weakness of others, betrays a disposition capable of the lowest degree of baseness, and callous to all finer feelings. The satisfaction which is received from the misery of a fellow creature, may be truly styled diabolical; what indeed can approach nearer to the nature of a dæmon, than thus wounding any one's feelings for the gratification of a malignant joy? Men are by nature formed for society, and stand in need of mutual assistance; to make this connexion the firmer, instead of barbarously exposing every fault, and affixing the worst construction to it, we should rather endeavour to conceal it, and always let our judgment incline to the favourable side. The contrary method to this is pursued by the libeller; every fault is by him magnified, every fact exaggerated, and even virtues held up as objects of ridicule. This conduct is cruel,——is base,——is cowardly. The dark assassin, secure in his concealment, directs his envenomed shafts against the peace of families, destroys domestic tranquillity, and fixes indelible blemishes on the reputation of the innocent; while, perhaps, he publicly assumes the specious title of a friend! Such a character may be considered as a robber, or even a murderer; for though he does not deprive me of my money, or form a design against my life, yet

Who steals my purse, steals trash; 'tis something—— nothing——
'Twas mine——'tis his——it has been slave to thousands:
But he who filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that, which makes not him the richer,
And leaves me poor indeed. SHAKESPEAR.

Lampoons have sometimes forced men to suicide; Archilochus, by the severity of his iambics, caused Lycambes to hang himself.

Men of real genius have sometimes indulged their talent for this kind of composition, and contributed to sharpen the weapon which was before too fatal. When the point is tempered by wit, the wounds which it inflicts are often incurable. But let those who are by nature gifted with superior endowments, consider, that no honour can be acquired from a work whose sole merit is scurrility; and that whatever wit it may contain, it cannot compensate for its injustice.

These productions are of such a nature, that they will seldom admit of an answer: The only method of defeating them is, where we know the author, to treat him with that generosity to which he is not entitled, and by gentle reproofs to shame him for his conduct. When Sir William Brown took a part in the contest with the licentiates in 1768, he was for this reason introduced by Mr. Foote in his Devil upon Two Sticks. Upon Foote's exact representation of him with his identical wig and coat, tall figure, and glass stiffly applied to his eye, he sent him a card complimenting him on having so happily represented him; but as he had forgot his muff, he had sent him his own. The satirist was abashed, and disarmed by this good-natured method of resenting.

There is also an inferior species of personal satire, which is more confined in its operations; this is, an absurd custom of employing ridicule in conversation. Those persons who use it, when they have once started a conceit, will sometimes pursue it for hours at the expence of some one or another in company. As this conduct tends to interrupt the agreement of the company, I think that these gentlemen would have no cause for complaint, if any one should think fit to call them "to order." This passion for exciting mirth at the expence of an individual, sometimes proceeds from mere emptiness, sometimes from a desire of passing for a wit, but in both cases it is equally culpable; and though we may admire the man who practises it, for the brilliancy of his parts, yet we can never sincerely esteem him in the character of a friend. PROPOSALS,

FOR A NEWS-PAPER,

THE ſubſcribers beg leave to inform their friends, and the public in general, that, having procured the new and elegant apparatus, lately imported from Europe, by Mr. John Hayes, they intend publiſhing a daily news-paper, under the title of The Baltimore Telegraphe.

It is propoſed to publiſh this paper every morning, (Sundays excepted) on a larger and more extenſive ſcale, than any heretofore attempted in the State of Maryland. The name will indicate the intention of the editors, that like the new machine, lately invented in France, it may communicate the earlieſt and moſt intereſting intelligence.

That this publication may be rendered agreeable to their friends and patrons, the editors beg leave to lay before them an idea of their plan.

I. As it is of great importance to the people, to be regularly informed of the operations of the general government, a certain portion of this paper will be appropriated to the debates of congreſs, the laws and all intereſting reports proceeding from that body, and from the officers of ſtate, ſo as to exhibit a connected view of their deliberations.

II. They will duly notice matters that are intereſting to the United States, ſuch as the progreſs of manufactures, agriculture, commercial enterpriſes, uſeful undertakings and inſtitutions, debates and proceedings of the national convention of France, and of the Britiſh parliament, with many other affairs from the moſt accredited foreign prints, which may appear worthy of inſertion.

III. Intereſting foreign and domeſtic publications ſhall be frequently announced, and copious extracts given of their contents, either from the works themſelves, or from the moſt impartial reviewers or critics; their deſign being, not only to render this paper an early vehicle of news, but alſo a magazine of uſeful and entertaining knowledge.

IV. With reſpect to eſſays of every deſcription, they will be guided by one general rule, founded on the freedom of the preſs, which they conceive ought only to extend to public characters; and therefore, they particularly oblige themſelves, to reject all pieces which contain inveCtives againſt private citizens, or reflections that might, in any manner, injure their reputation, or occaſion what is termed a news-paper war.

Theſe general ſketches of their deſign are ſubmitted to the conſideration of the public, from whom they ſolicit that ſupport, which it ſhall be their conſtant ſtudy to merit.

Having been encouraged in this buſineſs, by a very reſpectable number of the inhabitants of this town, they flatter themſelves, that The Baltimore Telegraphe will ſoon have a general and extenſive circulation, and thereby become uſeful to merchants, country traders, and others, as an advertiſing paper. The elegance and beauty of their type will undoubtedly claim the public approbation; and they are determined to execute all buſineſs intruſted to their care, with neatneſs and accuracy.

The firſt number will be publiſhed early in March, on a ſuper-royal ſheet, the ſize of Mr. Brown's Philadelphia Gazette, at ſeven dollars per annum, and regularly forwarded to country ſubſcribers, agreeably to orders, with all poſſible expedition and care.

The ſituation of public affairs, both in Europe and America, renders the preſent period truly intereſting to every freeman; we therefore preſume, that a publication intended for the ſupport of republican principles, which may contain a judicious ſelection of the moſt important events, cannot fail of being very acceptable to our fellow-citizens.

WANTED, to take the command of an elegant finiſhed PLEASURE BOAT, about the laſt of March next, (or ſooner if application is made before that date) a ſober, civil, induſtrious, and honeſt ſingle man, perfectly acquainted with the management of a bay veſſel, the waters of the Cheſapeake and the ſeveral rivers and harbours thereof, and if he underſtands navigation it will be a further recommendation. To ſuch a perſon, (provided he comes well recommended as to the above qualifications,) will be given the firſt encouragement as to wages, and to engage either by the year or half year, as the parties may agree on.

EDWARD LLOYD.

Wye river, January 10, 1795.

Forty Dollars Reward.

Hockley Works, January 22, 1795.

RAN away from the Hockley Works, in the night of the 21ſt inſtant, two negro men, one named JOHN, about 32 years of age, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, well made, middling black, and is of a dark, ſtubborn countenance; had on when he went off, a new felt hat, fearnought jacket, and negro cotton under jacket and breeches, white ſtockings, and ſhoes with nails in them. The other, a mulatto, named OSBORN, about 30 years of age, 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, ſlender made, has a cheerful countenance, very talkative, and can read and write; had on a new felt hat, dark, drab jacket, a cotton under jacket, dark brown kerſey trouſers, almoſt new. One of the above negroes was lately the property of governor Stone, the other lately the property of Mr. John Shaw, cabinet-maker in Annapolis. Whoever takes up the ſaid negroes, and confines them ſo that the ſubſcriber gets them again, ſhall receive, if taken within five miles FIVE DOLLARS, if ten miles TEN DOLLARS, if twenty miles TWENTY DOLLARS, if forty miles the above reward, or for each TWENTY DOLLARS, and reaſonable traveling expences if brought home, paid by

JOHN WRIGHT, or
Mr. Christopher Johnson,
Baltimore.

RAN AWAY on the ſecond inſtant, a negro man named DANIEL, thirty years of age, five feet eight or nine inches high, ſtoops in his walking, and is very pert in his manner of ſpeaking; his legs are remarkable ſmall, and feet very long and narrow for one of his ſize; his wool is ſhort; had on when he made his eſcape a round hat, painted or tarred, a ſhort fearnough grey waiſtcoat, a pair of brown breeches, new yellow ſhoes, and a pair of white yarn ſtockings. He is artful and an old offender, having been two years ago on a trip of the kind, and then taken at Mr. Johnſon's, near Elk-Ridge Landing, and committed to the gaol of Baltimore-town. It is expected that he will aſſume the Butler name, or ſome other family of negroes, who, within a few years, recovered their freedom, and will endeavour to paſs as ſuch. A reward of TWENTY DOLLARS will be paid for taking him, ſo that he be had again, if thirty miles from home, or FIVE POUNDS, if taken a leſs diſtance, or in the neighbourhood.
